Company Overview & Project Needs

AccuTemp Products, Inc. is a manufacturer of food service equipment, supplying to commercial and institutional companies across North America. AccuTemp proudly manufactures all products at its new headquarters in New Haven, Indiana. The new headquarters also includes office space for their salespeople and executives, who were previously working out of separate buildings. Their former office furniture was 25-year-old cubicles that surrounded metal desks. The company wanted new workstations that provided ergonomic benefits and were semi-private with the ability to bring in daylight to each office in the open plan.

The company desired visual privacy between workstations without sacrificing natural daylight. Along with privacy, each employee needed a space to safely secure personal items. Their training room needed to be flexible and easily transformed for multi-purpose use.

The Results

The local dealer and AIS worked with AccuTemp to meet their needs starting with Matrix panels at 50" high coupled with up-mount glass in Berman AQUI, a patterned glass offered by AIS. The stations included one fixed worksurface and one height-adjustable worksurface, allowing employees to change their working posture throughout the day.

Private offices were outfitted with Calibrate Casegoods, including height-adjustable desks and wall-mounted storage with sliding doors.

Café tables and Pierce seating were included in the AccuTemp Culinary Center, where their commercial food equipment is demonstrated to potential clients. The training area was equipped with Day-to-Day Flip-top Tables and Stow seating. Both products can nest neatly, giving room for AccuTemp to use the room differently when needed. Flexibility, ergonomics, and clean aesthetics are what made AIS products the perfect fit for AccuTemp's new headquarters.
