Company Overview & Project Needs

Best known for its orange-handled scissors created in 1967, Fiskars operates as an integrated consumer goods company.

Moving to a new location, Fiskars overall goal was to create a visually interesting aesthetic in combination with offering their employees a sense of privacy in their work environment. Fiskars also wanted to have a cohesive floorplate; keeping each workstation size the same. Each employee was offered a choice in white board or tool rail to hang Fiskars products off of for easy access and brand awareness. As a corporate goal to promote health and wellness, the company wanted each employee to have a sit-to-stand desk. Private offices needed to flex into small huddle spaces.

The Results

Solution: A combination of Matrix, Day-to-Day Height Adjustable Tables and Calibrate Storage with a custom wardrobe were a perfect fit for their price point and needs of customization. For Fiskars, the cohesiveness of design aesthetics and flexibility of workspace with the AIS complementary product lines offered fit their brand and facility requirements.
